

The 40-year-old Central Elementary School in Camas will go up for sale at the end of the current school year. Voters approved the sale of the school at a recent school district meeting. A large share of the students now attending Central will be in the new Zellerbach school when it opens next fall. (Columbian photo)